Today, I was in the Twin Cities and attended the St. Thomas Elite Camp. Like last year, plenty of talented kids were in the main gym and even more in the fieldhouse. There is no way I saw everyone, but there were a handful of kids I'd like to talk about because of the flashes I saw from them.

Katie Scharf

As the kids were getting some shooting competition, one group of four in the main gym this afternoon won something like four of the five spots. It almost became a joke over how well they were shooting, and I watched them in one of the runs and found myself focusing on Scharf. She has a short and simple shot, and she was one of the kids who made shot after shot in those competitions.

Summer Stock Risers – South Dakota & Nebraska

I had the opportunity to watch so many talented prospects this summer. After attending events all around the country all summer long, I have compiled a list of some of the players in each state who I think raised their stock.

Here is a look at the Summer stock risers from South Dakota and Nebraska:

Kate Scharf – 2026 – W – South Dakota Network

Kate is an elite level scorer from the perimeter. Her three point shooting is prolific, and she is able to get shots off quickly due to her smooth and fast release. She operates with great patience in pick-and-roll situations, as she allows the offense to develop and finds her open teammates. High level wing who is only getting better.

-Very quick release with range beyond the arc, strong shooter off either wing. Quality footwork into shot and mechanics. Sniper off catch & shoot actions. Forces help defender to play over the top in screen & roll and locates rolling post consistently. When defenders are forced to push her off the line, is able to adjust with quick drives and utilize frame for finishes. Scholarship talent who projects out as potential Division I wing.
